A piece of history

From the Red Cross ship to Pancake Ship

The Pannekoekschip JOHANNA has a turbulent history. Built in 1939 as a motor freighter in Moerdijk, on the day of her test mobilization has been announced in the Netherlands. The ship was then rented to the Red Cross, to serve as medical aid after a thorough renovation ship at the front. After the capitulation of the Netherlands, the ship managed to escape requisition by van to sail from hiding place to hiding place. For example, the JOHANNA without one survived the war with barely a scratch. The first trip after the war was still for it Red Cross: transporting relief supplies to Rotterdam, where there was a major shortage all the basic necessities of life.After a long life as an inland vessel, the JOHANNA has been converted into a three-masted on a sailing ship. The JOHANNA is 50 meters long and can accommodate 240 guests in the bow, in the hold or in nice weather on the beautiful sunken terrace on deck. Whether you are in the hold or in the bow is located, amidships, on the starboard or port side, you can taste that typical feeling everywhere atmosphere of a real sailing ship. It is the largest pancake ship in the Netherlands.
